

EXPECTS MORE INDICTMENTS IN DODGE CASE

Jerome Will Present New Facts to Grand Jury on Tuesday.

MORSE TO BE HERE.

Banker Is on the Way Home, and Will Probably Give Additional Testimony.

STEINHARDT WORRIED.

Abe Hummel's Former Partner in a Pitiable Condition When Arraigned Before Goff.

With the return of Benjamin Steinhardt, formerly a member of the law firm of Howe & Hummel, from Atlantic City, and his arraignment before Recorder Goff at the latter's residence, No. 319 West One Hundred and Fourth street, all of those indicted by the Grand Jury yesterday in connection with the Dodge-Morse marriage-divorce tangle are now practically in custody. With the exception of Edward J. Bracken, private detective, who played so conspicuous a part in the efforts to prevent the extradition of Dodge from Texas, Bracken is in Europe and there is no likelihood of his coming within the jurisdiction of the court at present.

That more indictments are to be found is a certainty. Mr. Jerome is by no means through with the case yet, and before another week has elapsed it is believed that at least one other alleged conspirator will be before the bar to plead. The Grand Jury has been ordered to reconvene on Tuesday next.

Charles W. Morse, who next to Mrs. Morse is the most prominent figure in the entire affair, will arrive on the Deutschland on Tuesday next. Mr. Morse is returning at the request of the District-Attorney, communicated to him through his counsel, Samuel Untermyer. Mr. Untermyer and all of Mr. Morse's friends say that he will be at the disposal of Mr. Jerome and the Grand Jury at all times. Before he left for Europe several weeks ago Mr. Morse was under subpoena for six weeks, during which time he repeatedly appeared before the Grand Jury.

The condition of Mr. Steinhardt, when he came back from Atlantic City last night was pitiable. He could hardly remember his name when arraigned before Recorder Goff. He came back willingly enough and was met in Jersey City by Assistant District-Attorney Garvan and a detective. On the arrival of the ferry-boat in New York he was formally placed under arrest by the detective, Mrs. Steinhardt with her husband and the entire party entered a carriage and started for Recorder Goff's residence. Because of Mr. Steinhardt's condition the horses were stabled hard, and at Broadway and Sixty-sixth street one of them dropped dead.

LUNATIC AWARDED $10,000 JUDGMENT.

Joseph Fay Gets Verdict Against Owners of Autotruck that Injured Him for Life.

The accident which made a hopeless lunatic of Joseph Fay, son of the Fourth avenue furniture dealer, and upon which he was awarded $10,000 damages before Justice Fitzgerald in the Supreme Court, was one of the odd freaks of fate.

Fay was driving a van loaded with furniture in Central Park West when, at Seventy-second street, a big auto-delivering truck owned by a department store crashed into his van from behind. It shoved the van along the avenue thirty feet or more, and there it collided with a downtown electric car. Between the autotruck and the car the van was smashed and Fay was pitched off, striking on his head.

He sustained a fracture of the small bones at the base of the skull, which made him insane. He is now in the Hospital for the Insane at Islip, L. I., and Drs. Allan McLane Hamilton and Carlos F. MacDonald declared that his case was progressive and he could never recover.

Jam's Fay, committee of Joseph Fay, sued both the Metropolitan Street Railway Company and the department store firm, but the Metropolitan was declared blameless and the jury found against the owner of the autotruck for $10,000.

HOPE TO FIND THE THIEF WHO HELD UP WOERZ

Offer of a Reward by The World Is Likely to Bring Results.

$1,000 FOR FINDER

Police Failing to Catch the Robber, Private Enterprise Steps In.

PUBLIC IS IN TERROR

Invasion of Private Homes Has Aroused a Feeling of Fear All Over the City.

All of the efforts of the police to catch the thief who held up the family of Ernest G. W. Woerz, the millionaire brewer, on Jan. 9, and at the point of the pistol compelled Mr. Woerz to give him $100, having failed, it remains to be seen what private enterprise can do toward running down this man, who is undoubtedly the same thief that tried to rob Dr. Zalkow, on Jan. 27.

Publicity has accomplished before what an impotent police force has failed to do, and The World's offer of a reward of $1,000 for the arrest and conviction of this thief has stirred interest in the matter, and may result in information that will cause the arrest of the hold-up man.

Increase in Boldness. For several months there has been an increasing boldness on the part of the crooks who have flocked to New York, and who are to be seen every night in the Broadway hotels in the vicinity of Forty-second street. The invasion of four private residences during December and the present month by men who depended for success on their own boldness and the lack of the police is the evidence of the spirit of daring that has come over crooks of late.

A reward of $1,000 will be promptly paid to whoever can furnish information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of this man, whose feats are almost unparalleled in the criminal history of this city. Until he is caught and punished no resident of the city is really safe. It would go a long way toward stopping the era of lawlessness which is dominant all over the city, but particularly so where the Woerz and Zalkow hold-ups occurred.

EX-PRIEST BEAT WIFE, SHE SAYS.

Anna Frater, Who Married Julian Bolinoc, Returns From Chicago and Asserts That He Treated Her Cruelly.

Anna Frater, the eighteen-year-old girl who ran away to Chicago to marry an unfrocked priest, Julian Bolinoc, who posed as a Paulist father, returned to-day, and is now ill at her former home, No. 448 Ninth avenue. The beatings which she says the priest gave her have left many black and blue marks on her neck and shoulders. This brought about a repentance quicker than the wailing and the wedding. Anna told her mother the following story:

"When I reached Chicago we were married. Then he proposed that we start at once for San Francisco, and after staying there a short time, leave for the Orient. I was afraid to go away so far with him, and told him so. Then he beat me unmercifully. He even tried to choke me, too.

"I couldn't live with him any longer, so I sent a telegram to get enough money to come home. I don't want any more of him."

The Rev. George Searies says the man never was connected with the Paulist Fathers and that he is an impostor. Bolinoc is an Austrian and collected a large amount of money from the poor, presumably for church purposes.

MABEL WALKER NOW SORRY FOR TUCKER.

Witness Who Might Have Helped Condemned Youth Is Ready to Testify if Called.

(Special to The Evening World.) DAMARISCOTTA, Me., Jan. 28.—Mabel Walker, the missing witness in the Tucker case, has suddenly reappeared here, after an absence of several weeks. She went into hiding before the Tucker trial began, and all efforts to discover her whereabouts failed. She has not been in Florida, as has been reported, but in a little inland village in Maine, far from railroads.

Miss Walker is the young woman upon whose testimony Tucker was tried, and she is now ready to testify. She said: "I did not believe that my testimony would have much effect one way or another. In fact, I was told that it would not do any good for me to tell what I knew about the fatal afternoon while I was visiting in Massachusetts."

"Naturally I did not want to face the crowded court-room and be questioned and cross-examined in a murder trial. I dreaded it so much that I concluded that I would not be available. I do not think that I did wrong in going away, but now that the poor young man has been convicted I am willing to help him, provided that he can get a new trial."

LAXATIVE BROMO QUININE. Always remember the full name. 20 cents.

$1,000 Reward!

Will be paid by THE WORLD for information that will lead to the detection, arrest and conviction of the robber who held up Ernest G. W. Woerz at the pistol point on Jan. 9 in his own home and whom the police have been unable to capture, despite the commission since of similar crimes by apparently the same individual.

Description of the Woerz robber:

Five feet eight inches tall, rather slim, and about twenty-five years of age. His face was narrow and sallow, his eyes dark brown and close together. His eyelids had a way of twitching constantly that may or may not have been due to the excitement of the situation. He spoke like a man of education. His clothing consisted, so far as the family could see, of a long black overcoat which came nearly to his feet, and the collar of which was turned up to conceal as much of his features as possible. His hat was a soft one of gray and was crushed in at the crown.

BIG POKER GAME TALK OF BALTIMORE

Passengers on Liner Tell of a Limitless Game that Resulted in Protests to Captain and Posting of Warning.

The big Baltic got in to-day, after battling ten days with head winds. Among her passengers were J. P. Morgan, Jr., and family, who are going to become residents of New York for a brief period.

When her 220 first-cabin passengers began to play down the gang-plank gossip of a strenuous poker game that continued for five days and put huge dents in several bank rolls was current about the White Star liner.

It was also related that two men made vigorous protests to the captain against the style of play employed by the passengers, whereupon a sign was posted, reading: "Beware of Professional Poker Players." After this the game stopped, but before-hand two men were several thousand dollars richer than when they joined the passenger list.

None of the names of the players could be obtained from the officers of the ship, though they admitted that the game had caused them considerable bother, and that one man had cried to the captain that he was ruined, when the captain of a kind fell before a royal straight flush of hearts. He dropped $500 in that one pot—the inside of his roll.

The game had started on a moderate basis, and as the wind rose after the first day out, so did the ante, until there was nothing above it but the beamed ceiling of the cabin. Though young Mr. Morgan and the members of his party took no part in the play, they were interested spectators toward the close of the session, when the odds were running suspiciously high.

The Morgan party consisted of J. P. Morgan, Jr., Mrs. Morgan, her valet, and maid, Miss E. J. Morgan, and Master H. S. Morgan, children of the late Mr. Morgan. When asked if he had come to settle in New York and take charge of his father's great business, he replied that he could not discuss the subject.

A pool was made on the fifth day's run, which was won by a syndicate of millionaires, including J. P. Morgan, Jr., and Percy Chubb. They bid $100 for the low field of figures, and the $100 was the lowest of the voyage, only 250 miles being covered. On the investment of $1,000 a little less than $500 was won.

Mass. Blanche Ring was also a passenger on the Baltic, returning to New York after a brief visit to London, where she went for the express purpose of seeing the production of "Serge Blue" at the Strand Theatre. She is to appear in the leading role of that play when it is produced in this city.

There were 220 first cabin, 150 second cabin and 57 steerage passengers on the Baltic, and notwithstanding the severe weather scarcely a half dozen persons were seasick. The great steamship, the passengers said, rode through the gales and mountainous seas as steadily as if she had been anchored in a millpond.

Lawyer Who Cashed It in Mexico Arrested, but Asserts He Thought It Good.

When the Ward line steamer El Monterey reached this city to-day from Mexican ports detectives from the Central Office went aboard and arrested Philip McIntyre, a lawyer of the City of Mexico, just before he left to go aboard El Monterey.

EVAN THOMAS IS KILLED BY FALL

Former President of the New York Produce Exchange and Wealthy Commission Man Plunges from Window.

Evan Thomas, twice President of the New York Produce Exchange, and a wealthy commission merchant, fell from the third-story window of the apartment-house at Nos. 66-68 West Ninth street to-day and was instantly killed.

Mr. Thomas, who was sixty-five years old, lived with his son and daughter-in-law. For several months he had been suffering from attacks of vertigo and heart disease. Lately he had been confined to his bed with a nurse in constant attendance.

When he suffered from attacks of heart disease he would endeavor to get air and have the windows raised in his room. While left alone a few minutes to-day he must have had one of the attacks, gone to the window and after raising it lost his balance. He fell to the pavement, landing on his head.

Mr. Thomas has been identified with many important business enterprises in this city since the close of the Civil war. He was born in Baltimore, and was a direct descendant of the first Evan Thomas, who acquired fame in this country, coming over with Lord Baltimore at the time the Maryland colony was founded.

During the war Mr. Thomas moved to New York and began operations on the Street. Five years later he took his seat on the Produce Exchange. His operations in bread stuff were the largest on "Change." He was an ardent Democrat and was a member of the Electoral College in 1892. At the same time he was President of the Business Men's Democratic Association of New York. He had appointed him Commissioner in the matter of the North River Bridge and Governor Flower appointed him President of the Erie Canal Commission. He was a member of the Southern Society and Democratic Club.

A vaudeville performance will be given by the Act's National Protective Association, beginning at 8 P. M. sharp. Dancing will follow.

KILLED COUPLING CARS.

Samuel Harzel, thirty-five years of age, a brakeman employed on the Pennsylvania Railroad, was killed while coupling cars on the Jersey City yards to-day.

SHE LOST $900 BY $19 THEFT

Pretty Shoplifter Yielded to the Temptation on Way to Pool-room to Place $100 on 9 to 1 Shot and Was Arrested.

It was a hard-luck story that Mrs. Mary Roberts, of No. 1088 Bedford avenue, accused of shoplifting, told to Magistrate Dooley, in Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, to-day. Mrs. Roberts is handsome, petite, well dressed and frank. She admitted stealing $19 worth of dress goods from a Fulton street store and said she had been helping herself to goods for years.

Four years ago, she asserted, she had a happy home and a loving, but poorly paid, husband, who took her to the races and taught her how to bet. She became acquainted with a bookmaker's wife, visited the tracks every day, became fascinated to such an extent that she kept her own "dope book," and then her husband left her.

Since then, she told the Magistrate, she has made her living by betting on the races, at the track in summer, at pool-rooms in winter.

Pawned Plunder to Play Races.

Whenever luck ran against her she would stroll into a department store, annex some expensive merchandise, carry it to a pawnshop and establish a new bank roll.

Two days ago she won $250, and she had the most of it yesterday afternoon, pool-roomward bound, bearing a hot story on Bonaparte in the last race at New Orleans. She had made up her mind to play no other race than this and to put $100 on it.

The habit of strolling through department stores and becoming attached to loose sections of the stock overcame her, although she had money in plenty. A clerk observed her and called Detectives Carroll and Gilpin, who placed her under arrest.

Sure Tip Wins, 9 to 1.

This was an hour before the last race at New Orleans was due to be run. Mrs. Roberts begged the sleuths to delay looking her up until she could place a swell bet on Stonewall.

"It can't lose," she insisted, "I'll place something for each of you."

"Madam," said the detectives, "there are no ponies in Brooklyn."

This statement so amazed Mrs. Roberts that she was rendered speechless, and before she could recover herself she was in the Adams street station-house.

After hearing her story to-day Magistrate Dooley held her in $20 bail for the Court of General Sessions.

Stonewall won at 9 to 1.

WOMAN BEGGAR BANKED $3,000

Clever Mendicant Sent to Island for Six Months Professed to Have Been Maid in Vanderbilt and Golet Families.

When Charlotte Kavanagh was arraigned before Magistrate Crane in the Jefferson Market Court to-day Detective Barry told the Magistrate that the woman, whom he had arrested at the home of W. E. Roosevelt, cousin of the President, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses, was the cleverest woman beggar in New York and that she had $3,000 in the bank. This money, he said, had been collected by the woman from wealthy persons who had listened to the sad stories she told of families in need whom she wished to help. At the time of her arrest she professed to have been a maid for Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt and later for Mrs. Ogden Golet.

After listening to the story of the woman's alleged "panhandling" of the charitable rich, Magistrate Crane sentenced the Kavanagh woman to the island for six months. As sentence was being delivered there was a commotion in the rear of the court and a poorly clad man made his way to the front. Addressing the Magistrate he said he was the woman's husband and, if it was true that she had the amount of money claimed, he had seen nothing of it and was in absolute want.

Magistrate Crane, after detailing Detective Barry to investigate the man's story, gave him a letter to aid him in finding work. The Kavanagh woman, who gave the fictitious address of No. 132 East Fifty-second street, was then sent to the island.

Reaping Rich Harvest.

That the well-dressed woman was reaping a harvest along Fifth avenue came to the notice of the Charities Organization, and Detective Barry was sent to investigate and arrest if the facts warranted.

Barry saw a handsome young woman walking in the street last night. She went into the home of George G. Murray, a broker, at No. 812, where she talked with a maid. Then she went to the home of Mrs. John Thatchler, No. 815. From there she rang the bell at the Clarence Postley home, No. 817. At each place she told the same story to the maid or butler. She needed money to bury a dead child, whose family was in want.

Placed Under Arrest.

As she was leaving the Roosevelt residence Barry approached her and told her she was under arrest. The woman told how she had been the Vanderbilt maid, and later in the employ of Mrs. Golet. She made very positive statements at first that she was on a call of duty that was prompted by charity; alone, but later, Barry asserted, she admitted to him that she was collecting money for her own use.

SLOCUM CLAIMS FILED.

Only $1,300 to Pay Demands Aggregating $1,475,078.

United States Commissioner Alexander to-day completed his list of those who have filed claims for damages arising from the wreck of the General Slocum on June 15.

Under a provision of the United States Revised Statutes, the liability of the owner of a wrecked steamer is limited to the value of the hull, cargo and engines after the wreck has been raised. The Slocum was raised and the hull sold for $1,600. Out of this sum the wharfage and other charges must first be deducted, leaving about $1,200 or $1,300 to be divided among the claimants. According to Commissioner Alexander's report, the total amount of claims is $1,475,078.

The claims are divided into three groups, the first being that of the city of New York for raising the hull, searching for bodies, etc., and incidental expenses, a total amount of $34,821. The claims for personal injury amount to $80,000, and the claims for death are $1,360,152. Among claims filed by the city is one for $60 for draping the City Hall in honor of the dead victims.

Two days ago she won $250, and she had the most of it yesterday afternoon, pool-roomward bound, bearing a hot story on Bonaparte in the last race at New Orleans. She had made up her mind to play no other race than this and to put $100 on it.

The habit of strolling through department stores and becoming attached to loose sections of the stock overcame her, although she had money in plenty. A clerk observed her and called Detectives Carroll and Gilpin, who placed her under arrest.

EXPLOSION KILLS TWO, INJURES ONE

Dynamite Blast, Which Falls to Go Off as Expected, Explodes when Men Start to Investigate.

Two Italian laborers were killed outright and one fatally injured to-day by a delayed explosion of a dynamite blast in the work of a sewer trench at Sixth street and Bergenline avenue, West New York.

The men were employed in the sewer construction by Contractor Michael Henry and were blasting through rocky ground. They lighted the blast and retired to a safe distance, awaiting the explosion. After a considerable wait, during which the blast had failed to go off, the three men went forward to investigate the reason.

As they reached the spot where the charge had been placed the blast suddenly went off, killing two of the men. The third, fatally hurt, was hurried to the North Hudson Hospital, Union Hill.

The blast filled the air with a shower of rock and debris, shattering all the windows in the neighborhood. The three victims are known only by their numbers.

L. I. ROAD RAISES COMMUTERS' RATES

Advance of 25 to 30 Per Cent. Goes Into Effect Feb. 1—Company Needs Money.

Like the hotel-keeper who charged $3 for two eggs because "he needed the money" the Long Island Railroad Company has increased its rates to commuters from 25 to 30 per cent., and the advance goes into effect on Feb. 1.

At the general office of the company the flat-footed statement is made that the increase in rates is due to the company's desire to get an increased revenue to meet the present expenses and future expenditures.

In addition to the advance in the rates to the commuters, the rates are advanced a few cents on single trip tickets and on twenty trip, or family tickets. There is a shade the best of it in the new rates as compared between the series tickets and the commutation tickets. In favor of the commutation. This it is thought will force the man who has been using the trolley and riding in on series tickets to go to the trolley entirely, something which is almost impossible to do or to abandon the trolley and take a commutation ticket.

Has Suffered for Years.

For years the Long Island commuter has suffered. He never gets to town when it rains hard, or snows more than a few inches. The train schedules are changed without sufficient warning, and trains are abandoned when the summer season closes to which the commuter had become attached. He has learned to change cars at Jamaica without warning and to stand up in a baggage car without complaining. He learned all this under the management of the road before the Pennsylvania gained control of it.

When that event happened he thought he saw a promise of better service, and under the impression that it was coming the commuter has multiplied upon the face of Long Island by persons moving from the thickly settled portions of Brooklyn and Manhattan.

Increase in Revenue $600,000.

It is estimated that the increase of revenue to the Long Island Railroad Company will be about $600,000 annually. While there has been no advance in express or freight rates, it would not surprise the towns along the lines to have these advanced. If the road "needs money" the residents of the island see no way they can stop it from getting it any way it wants to. There would not be so great a cry against the advanced rates if any additional service were to be provided, and additional trains run, or any trains put on late at night, so that the unfortunate Long Islander who attends a New York theatre may remain and see the last act of the play.

Just What It Will Do.

The new rates and the old rates both for regular and commutation tickets are as follows:

| | MAIN LINE | Old | New | Comm. | Old | New |
|---------------------------|-----------|-------|-------|-------|-------|-------|
| N. Y. to Jamaica | 10.00 | 10.00 | 12.50 | 10.00 | 10.00 | 12.50 |
| N. Y. to Mineola | 12.00 | 12.00 | 15.00 | 12.00 | 12.00 | 15.00 |
| N. Y. to Oyster Bay | 14.00 | 14.00 | 17.50 | 14.00 | 14.00 | 17.50 |
| N. Y. to Richmond | 16.00 | 16.00 | 20.00 | 16.00 | 16.00 | 20.00 |
| N. Y. to Bay Shore | 18.00 | 18.00 | 22.50 | 18.00 | 18.00 | 22.50 |
| N. Y. to Port Jervis | 20.00 | 20.00 | 25.00 | 20.00 | 20.00 | 25.00 |
| L. I. City to Elmhurst | 1.00 | 1.00 | 1.25 | 1.00 | 1.00 | 1.25 |
| L. I. City to Jamaica | 1.50 | 1.50 | 1.87 | 1.50 | 1.50 | 1.87 |
| L. I. City to Mineola | 2.00 | 2.00 | 2.50 | 2.00 | 2.00 | 2.50 |
| L. I. City to Oyster Bay | 2.50 | 2.50 | 3.12 | 2.50 | 2.50 | 3.12 |
| L. I. City to Richmond | 3.00 | 3.00 | 3.75 | 3.00 | 3.00 | 3.75 |
| L. I. City to Bay Shore | 3.50 | 3.50 | 4.37 | 3.50 | 3.50 | 4.37 |
| L. I. City to Port Jervis | 4.00 | 4.00 | 5.00 | 4.00 | 4.00 | 5.00 |

At the office of Howard M. Smith, the general passenger agent of the line, his representative, when asked about the advance, said:

"These increases in the rates are made only for the purpose of getting increased revenue to meet present expenses and future expenditures for large improvements. All of the commutation rates have been increased about 30 per cent. Outside of these we have endeavored to adjust and equalize the rates for trip tickets, keeping as near the two cents a mile basis as possible."

AGED ARTIST DEAD.

Lemuel M. Willes Expires at His Home from Pneumonia.

Lemuel M. Willes, an artist, died of pneumonia to-day at his home, No. 101 West Fifty-fifth street. He had been sick only a few days, but his advanced age—he was seventy-nine—precluded his recovery.

Mr. Willes was a landscape painter. His work is well-known throughout the country.
